Crisis Effects Class of 2009 Job Seekers

"We are expecting things to improve by years end, and we will certainly keep you updated when we are ready to hire again from IUJ." This response unfortunately was typical this year as the IUJ career counselor reached out to IUJ's traditional recruiting firms, and when developing new contacts. The Financial Crises certainly hit IUJ as it did many other graduate schools.

To counteract, IUJ improved our Alumni Job support services by creating an Alumni Resume Bank to promote to traditional and new contacts. Furthermore, we developed our services and processes to help active job hunting new graduates obtain a Designated Stay Visa to continue their job hunt after graduation.

Further, an attempt to make more connections with overseas recruiters and trusted headhunters proved successful, and those new relationships should take us well into 2010.

Our talented new graduates will be ready to ride the wave when hiring does take place. The alumni have been asked to be active in helping them directly, and informing campus of opportunities which they are doing in record numbers.

We are hoping for solid results by September for our wonderful Class of 2009.

Job Placement Snap Shot

About 72% of all IUJ graduates were employed before or within days of graduation in 2009. This figure includes our sponsored students who return to their previous work place. For those without work waiting for them, unfortunately this year our placement rates are down as a reflection of the painful world economic crisis.

For student registered with career services at IUJ for job support, an over all 24% had found jobs before or within weeks of graduation. The range was 0% for our 5 IPSP students (many of whom postponed their job search entirely for personal reasons), to 32% of our 22 job hunting MBA graduates. For those MBA students able to secure work, 54% received direct support from IUJ.

This year, about 25% of our 2009 graduates postponed their job hunt waiting for better days ahead. About 15% went on to language school or a second masters degree. About 35% continued an active job hunt, with the majority staying in Japan in the days after graduation, and the rest going back home where the language issue would not be a factor.

A few students took unpaid internships in their home countries at companies they hope to eventually work for once hiring resumes.

IUJ hopes to be able to provide assistance to those still without a job as things pick up in the fall.

Placement Rates

Please see rates from previous years as 2009 is not a good representation of a typical year. www.iuj.ac.jp/career/

Internships—Highlight of the Placement Program in 2009

Despite the economic crises facing the globe, the IUJ internship program again shows very solid results proving our students are valued by companies!

This year, we have more business-oriented companies hosting interns overseas (outside of Japan) than ever before, and again solid results for UN related positions. Several opportunities were not sought but nearly everyone who actively pursued an internship was rewarded for their efforts.

Not everyone at IUJ is eligible for, nor interested in an internship for the summer months. Some scholarship or sponsorship rules prevent some students from interning, while some students prefer to spend the summer working on their thesis, language skills or other qualifications such as a CFA.

This year, 104% of those seeking internships are currently engaged in a summer activity. A record 5 students had 2 internship experiences: 3 MBA students, one IRP student and 1 Ebiz student (Please note, Ebiz students can participate in an internship only after graduation, or if the work is done part time and/or from campus.)

While 54 students registered for Internship support, 42 were in the end active in the hunt, with 44 total internships being found. Two students were unsuccessful in the hunt.
